But then I cannot work because You see I've lost a leg. As soon as I got home again, I took my scant back pay

And with it bought an organ, sir, On which I used to play. It was about the only work My crippled frame could do-caides the leg I lost that day

Twas better than it was to be, This doing all I could-I have a little manly pride, As every soldier should.

And day by day, thanks be to God, The people were so good, I picked up "scrip" enough to buy My little ones some food.

I really thought the Government Would let my license go-Ten dollars was a sum so large, I could not pay you know. But ah! I made a sad mistake-

The public debt is great-And for their interest and their gold, adholders cannot wait. Besides the law must be enforced-

Twas so the Marshal said --And so they took my organ, sir, And with it took my bread. I do not know but this was right. But I cannot hardly see, Why rich men should not pay their tax

As well as you and me. While I struck on the battle field. Fell bleeding in the ditch, These vile contractors stayed at home, And stole themselves quite rich.

My helpless little ones at home, Are crying for their bread. While lazy Southern negroes, sir, At my expense are fed.

Will some one help a soldier boy Whose record has no stain-I see you are a Democrat-I shall not ask in vais.

I thank you sir, and one thing more-It is my earnest prayer, That you will vote and work besides For Seymour and for Blair,

We'll sweep away those wicked laws Which now oppress the poor, And union; peace and liberty, DETROIT, September 2, 1868.
